And now - Pauline Tilley!

I was born in Sunderland and lived ten minutes from the beach at Roker. My father was a Chief Engineer in the Merchant Navy, and I even made a few trips with him when he did the Coastal Run (Health & Safety would never allow that now!).

On leaving Monkwearmouth Grammar School (known as the 'Monkey House' by the locals) I went to Durham University (Kings College, Newcastle) to study Bacteriology (now named Microbiology) where I met my future husband, Richard.

After university, I worked in the TRD at Consett Iron Company but didn't stay there long as it was a bleak place and the bus regularly got stuck in the snow – a horrendous journey! I then worked in the laboratory at Sunderland & South Shields Water Company, taking water samples from consumers' houses, reservoirs, and pumping stations, and testing them in the laboratory: a very interesting job.

We moved to Nottingham in 1970 with Richard's job, when my daughter Julie was 3 years old. In 1972 I got a job as a phlebotomist at the General Hospital, transferring to the QMC when it opened in 1979. We were the first phlebotomists in the country – and I had found my niche! I loved this job until I had to retire at aged 65. But I got another job as HCA with a local GP's surgery, taking bloods, assisting with minor ops and visiting patients at home. I did this for almost 15 years, until Covid reared its ugly head, and I decided it was time to retire!

When my husband died in 1998, my friend Judith encouraged me to join The Mechanics, where she was a member. So I did, and I've enjoyed holidays, meals, and made many new friends including Barry Farmer, who sadly died after we had been friends for about 15 years. I would encourage anyone to join the Mechanics, which is a great place to meet people, and there's something for everyone!
